ZGRAF 11

International exhibition of graphic design and visual communications

THIS USED TO BE THE FUTURE

March 15 – April 5, 2012

Zagreb

ZGRAF

The international triennial exhibition of graphic design and visual communications Zgraf is envisaged as an instrument for affirming design and the designer's profession. The international character of the manifestation attempts to evaluate the work of local design and the activities of local designers within the current international framework.

THIS USED TO BE THE FUTURE

Zgraf 11 aims to discuss the relationship between design and social and political modernization in the post-industrial era. It wants to affirm the idea of design that is closer to social development than to mere economic growth. We would like to raise once again the questions of the nature and significance of design as a contemporary profession. In what ways can we stand up to the underappreciated notions of design and its practices in times of deep structural crises of the global post-industrial society? What are the possibilities of critical design practices today? What is the role and the potential of education for designers and education through design?
